CC Docket No. 96-149

CPNI RULES

- Total Service
 - Sets parameters for implied approval
 - Scope set at existing customer-carrier relationship

- Approval
 - Notification
 - Consent

Impact of CPNI Rules CPE

- CMRS CPE bundling puts wireless carriers in unique position
- Permitting carriers to use CPNI to market CPE promotes the public interest in:
 - Efficient Spectrum Usage
 - New Services and Features
 - Quality Service
 - Customer Satisfaction
 - Public Safety

Impact of CPNI Rules Information Services

- Historically bundled with wireless digital service
- Customer confusion and irritation with carrier inability to market effectively the logical components of service
- Ensures that digital service providers and PCS lack parity with analog systems
- Given battery life considerations, benefits customers who are high volume users, especially those with many incoming calls

Impact Of CPNI Rules Customer Retention/Win-Back

- “Customer retention” encompasses virtually every point of contact with the customer
- Not clear when customer retention ends and win-back begins
- Win-back restriction:
 - Unless unreasonable, bad public policy because it deters competition
 - Is not clear for wireless industry:
 - Pre-paid

Impact of CPNI Rules Consent/Notification

- Consent
 - Preexisting consent must be valid
 - No need for approval for use of CPNI for in-bound telemarketing to be subject to the same restrictions as out-bound marketing
- Notification
 - Expansive requirements severely hamper carriers' ability to obtain consent
 - Should not apply to in-bound telemarketing
 - Is notification one-time or every time
